B'ashington Post Service SPRINGFIELD, Massachusetts The Democratic presidential Candidate, Michael S. Dukakis, launched a hecuc 20-stop, two-day campaign swing through nine cities Sunday — but all of them right here in western Massachusetts.

He was to announce a planning grant for an art museum, play in a softball game and meet with first-time home buyers. Last week, he did a similar two days of week, he did a similar two-day tour of north-to get back in gear on that other assignment the party awarded him this summer.

The end of August finds the Du-kakis presidential campaign on an unexpected down slope. Its big July poll lead has vanished, its issues seem a trifle stale and even the

And they say that while most Americans appear to be thinking about anything but politics right now, they have spent a profitable summer putting together the best 50-state field organization any recent Democratic nominee has had, and raising large sums of money. The money man, Robert Farmer, is halfway to his goal of raising $50 million for state parties.

"In these areas, we are competitive in ways Democrats have not been for quite some time," Miss Estrich said. Where the Dukskis campaign does not seem competitive at the moment is in being ready to offer a simple, compelling message to the voters in the fall campaign. The

Pravda Accuses U.S. Of Instigating Cold War

By Esther B. Fein

New York Times Service MOSCOW — A full-page article in Pravda, the Communist Party newspaper, blamed the United States on Monday for unilaterally instigating the Cold War and said some forces in the West continued to support such antagonistic positions

Citing formerly classified U.S. documents of the late 1940s, the article described various anti-Soviet plans, including one to attack Moscow and 18 other Soviet cities with "a diabolical combination of parallel use of atomic, radiological, chemical and hacteriological weapons."

In the commentary, Valentin M. Fahn, head of the Novosti press agency, and Lev Bezymensky, a senior Pravda correspondent, disavowed any Soviet responsibility for the Cold War. The Soviet Union has long maintained U.S. responsibility for the Cold War. But Western diplomats here said they were surprised by the timing of the article, when relations between the superpowers are strong and as nuclear missiles are begin-ning to be destroyed under the INF Treaty,

They said that the publication at this time of the Pravda article appears to be part of a growing debate within the Soviet leadership over the fundamental direction of Soviet foreign policy.

Aquino of the Philippines met Sultan Muda Hassanal Bolkiah, the leader of Brunei, for an hour Monday at the start of her first visit here. The leaders did not address reporters after meeting at the state palace. Officials had said that the talks were expected to focus on trade and the possibility of Brunei economic aid for Manila.

The Philippine Army chief of staff said in Manila that the country's armed forces would be on full alert while the president was away. Although coup rumors often circulate when Mrs. Aquino goes abroad. the president made no reference to security problems in a brief departure speech in Manila.

Malaysia Toughens Refugee Policy

KUALA LUMPUR (Reuters) -- Malaysia will treat all new Vietnam-...ese refugees landing on its shores as illegal immigrants. Deputy Prime Minister Ghafar Baba Abdul said Monday.

Mr. Ghafar, who spoke on his return from talks in Vietoam, declined to say whether Malaysia would turn away new arrivals, but the Foreign Ministry's secretary-general, Yusof Hatim, said that from now on all new . refugees from Vietnam would be arrested, charged and deported from Malaysia.

The government will also decide soon when to close a refugee camp holding 13,000 refugees, Mr. Ghafar said. He said Vietnam would send a delegation to Kuala Lumpur to urge refugees to return to their homeland. But he added that it was unclear how many would want to go back.

country. No whisper of opposition was allowed to emerge. But the general fell from office last month and his successors have now lost control. The last remnant of the government is now promising a referendum. But thanks to that diligent police work. Burma has virtually no one of any political experience and standing who is not tarnished by close association with the regime that is now collapsing.

There's an unhappy parallel here with recent events in Haiti, another country that suffered extreme isolation under a long despotism. When the Duvalier family was at last overthrown, in early 1986, there was similar euphoria among the crowds in the streets — but the crowds were similarly leaderless. There were promises of eleotions, but after nearly two years of preparation, the army canceled them with gunfire to protect its aothority and, not incidentally, the graft on which some of its officers live. In Burma, the immediate question is whether the army is going to allow any real challenge to its authority. The parallel goes farther. Both Burma and Haiti live in desperate poverty, the direct result of bad government that cut them off from the progress that their respective neighbors have been making and, in Burma's case, Burma's secret police were highly effi- Its leadership's imposition of a brand of cient in the 26 years that U Ne Win ran the barren socialism. The average income in Burma is significantly lower than in India or China, let alone Thailand. One of the most difficult feats in politics is the transition from dictatorship to democracy. That difficulty is compounded by poverty and illiteracy. Haiti's revolution has, for the present, succumbed to those burdens. Although the United States has substantial interests in better government in Haiti, it has given up. Preoccupied by Central America, where things are going badly, the United States has concluded that it has neither the attention nor the money to devote to political resuscitation in Haiti. It has abandoned Haiti to its military and, increasingly, the drug smugglers. Perhaps, against the odds, things will work out less badly in Burma. A great deal will depend on forces inside the country about which the rest of the world knows very little. Foreign help might play a benefi-cial part, although it won't come from the United States. If any ontsiders are able to make a difference, they will probably be, in addition to Japan, recently Burma's major aid donor, its immediate neighbors. But it's hard to guess what regional influences might prevail, since Burma's immediate neighbors include the world's largest communist state as well as the world's largest democracy.

'New' Dukakis Pitch Has an Old Ring to It

By William Safire ASHINGTON -Does it bother vou when a stranger calls up to make a telephone pitch for a product, charity or political campaign? "Telemarketing" — the computer-dialing of your telephone in a new form of junk-mail solicitation — is the name for this oew invasion of privacy. Such telephone pollution does not trouble the State of Massachusetts. In 1985. Governor Michael Dukakis's handpicked chairman of the Massachusetts Community Development Finance Corp., John Marston, approved a $50,000 state loan guarantee to Share Systems Inc., of Cambridge, which Mr. Marston proudly tells me "the company was able to use to induce a local bank to give them a $125,000 line of credit."

Success followed. Mr. Dukakis can point with pride to this example of government helping entrepreneurs cre-ate jobs — especially since this new telemarketing facility (100 operators day, according to the company treasur-er, Gerald Jeffkin) counts among its clients the Dukakis political campaign.

The use of state credit to set up a large boiler-room telephone opera-tion, which is then hired to advance the career of the state governor, may be standard procedure in Boston politics. A request for information about fee billing and amounts raised has been submitted to the Dukakis campaign and may turn up no more than mutual backscratching.

But what could be my Pecksniffian interest in a coziness in the financing of potentially helpful businesses has led to a clear look at "the old Dukakis" in defense and foreign affairs.

Another of Share Systems' clients is the "Jobs with Peace Campaign," which describes itself as a coalition of "low-income, Third World, labor, tenand civil rights groups," proposing in its literature "to cut military speak-" ing by 25 percent and transfer those funds into the domestic economy Listed on the advisory board in 1987 fund solicitation letter is the usual anti-defense crowd: Jesse Jack, son. The L.S. Vice 1

Unloved. and L

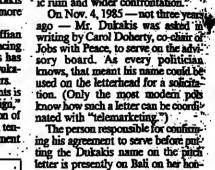

By Farmer M.

Big deal, you say, a politician reg-ularly joins committees, it does not occessarily mean that he sing<sup>2</sup> ports their goals. Let's see: On April 16, 1983, in Boston's Fancuil Hall, Mr. Dukakis was the lead witness in a mock hearing launch-ing "Jobs with Peace Week," hailing the organization's "common-sense me" tional alternative to the Reagan aff-ministration's excessive arms buildup" and charging that Reagan policies "are leading us down the road to economc ruin and wider confrontation."

Jobs with Peace, to serve on the advi-sory board. As every politician knows, that meant his name could be used on the letterhead for a solicitation. (Only the most modern pols know how such a letter can be coordiletter is presently on Bali on her hon-eymoon --- if I were her, I wouldn't return calls either - but the Dakakis press office confirms that the governor is today on the advisory board of the outfit that bewails our "militarized state" and "war economy." We don't hear the New Dukahis speaking quite that way on the stump, or warning of "wider confront tation" today, especially in light of the success of Reagan policies in it bringing about an arms treaty.

But Mr. Dukakis cannot cleanly disassociate himself from the dovish far left --- the Jackson left --- on defense and foreign policy because that is where he comes from. Those activists are his base, their far-out proposals his recent beliefs, their mindset his own. He can fudge his positions to suit prevailing polls, but be cannot honorably rip up his roots. He cannot reject the Jobs with Peace rhetoric offering a choice "bo-tween building the MX missile and improving education, between supporting the contras and constructing low-income housing," but he is faced with the need to reach rightward. That is why the New Dukakis tosses in expensive conventional arms and maybe a different mobile missile. His far-left supporters know this moderate pose is only a sop to Cerberus, and smile at the campaign-time conversion. I think they know their fellow dove; in victory, the "old" Dukakis would re-emerge, government and politically aided business would work hand in glove, and our telephones would start ringing off the hook. ## The Burning of Rondonia

A calamitous cycle of destruction is unfolding in Rondonia, the heavily forested Amazon province in western Brazil. The tragedy is a lesson to Brazil and to the interna tional agencies that finance its projects that heedless development can wreak havoc with the global environment, not just Brazil's.

· Cattle ranchers and the thousands of landless settlers recently brought in by the government are torching the tropical forest to clear the land.

• The fires are so extensive that they add appreciably to the global pollutioo that now may be warming the earth's climate. • The richly diverse forest, ancient home to a fifth of the world's plant and animal species, is being destroyed irreversibly, and its Amerindian inhabitants are dying from imported diseases.

• Stripped of the trees that recycle for-est outrieots, the soil yields ooly a few years' crops before the settlers move on, to destroy more forest.

A new picture of the damage has emerged from a NASA satellite sensitive to heat sources. Scientists at Brazil's Space Research Center, Marlise Simons has reported in The New York Times, have counted 170,000 fires last year in the western Amazon.

The fires contribute twice over to the greenhouse effect, the feared warming of the world's climate that may already have begun in the recent string of hot summers. They contribute fully one-tenth of the global production of carbon dioxide, the principal greenhouse gas. And once the forest is burned, it can oo longer absorb carbon dioxide from the air and turn it back into vegetation. Despite the richness and diversity of tropical forests, their soil is mostly poor. Shielded from the recurrent ice ages that repeatedly extinguished life in temperate zoocs, the animals and plants of the tropics have had millions of years in which to crime from which no one benefits. develop new species and complex interdependencies. The living systems now being destroyed in Brazil are the flower of some 50 million years of evolution. Cattle ranchers, responsible for 80 percent of the destruction, receive sizable tax breaks. Without such subsidies, the cattle ranches are "inherently uneconomic," writes Rob-ert Repetto of the World Resources Institute. Besides the ranchers, half a million settlers have invaded the Rondonian forest along the new Cuiab'a-Porto Velho road, paved with a $250 million World Bank loan. The bank's requests for protection of the forests and their tribes were ignored, Since the road was paved, the area of de-stroyed forest has tripled. Rondonia, en-dowed with one of the world's richest ecosystems, is already 17 percent deforested. The tragedy is that the forest could be preserved even as its resources are tapped.

damage than annual cropping or cattle. The valuable hardwood trees could be harvested instead of burned. Migrant settlers would hunger less for forest land if Brazil redistributed the 43 percent of its arable land now owned by just 1 percent of its population.

The World Bank has learned from the disaster of the Rondonia road, but it and other lending agencies need to ensure that Brazil shares the lesson. An imaginative scheme of debt-for-nature swaps has been devised by Thomas Lovejoy of the World Wildlife Fund: the fund raises money to buy up the dollar-denominated debt of countries like Bolivia, Ecuador and Costa Rica.

Meanwhile, Mr. Bush prefers to argue that he alone believes in the pledge of allegiance, and implies that Mr. Dukakis is unpatriotic because he vetoed a Yegor Ligachev: Socialism's Last True Believer

Well, says Deng Xiaoping, socialism is hence-forth defined as that which works. It does not matter whether the cat is black or white, goes Mr. Deng's famous slogan, so long as it catches mice. Mr. Gorbachev, too, is now boldly redefining communism as mouse-catching.

How Much U.S. Inflation?

How much inflation should the United States tolerate? That's oot a question of economics, hut of political values. The level of public anxiety seems to rise sharply as the inflation rate goes over 5 percent a year. That's just about where it is this summer.

Infladon isn't likely to be an issue in this year's presidential campaign. Chances are low that it will jump high enough before November to set the alarm bells ringing. But inflation, and voters' feelings about it, are going to set limits oo the administratioo that follows Mr. Reagan's.

At an inflatioo rate of 4 percent a year, the dollar will drop to half of its present value in a little less than 18 years. On the recent record. Americans are willing to accept that. But at 5 percent, it drops to half of its value in 14 years. That, it appears, is as fast as most people are willing to see it go - and perhaps a bit faster.

In the year up to the 1980 election, the Consumer Price Index rose 12.6 percent much ton moch, the voters said. In the year up to the 1984 election, it rose 4 percent. A lot better, they said, as they reelected Mr. Reagan. It went up only 1.1 percent in 1986, with the collapse of the price of oil; then the rate went hack into the 4 percent range last year and stayed there through the past winter. But since early spring, it's been rising at a little more than 5 percent.

There is more than one way to measure inflation, but all the indicators tell the same story. There was a sudden acceleration last spring. It's oot only financial markets that have begun to get jumpy in response. At the grocery store you can see the beginnings of what's known as anticipatory pricing. Everybody along the line, from producer to processor to retailer, knows that this summer's drought is going to mean increases in the coming months. Some sellers have already hiked prices, although most of the drought's effects oo groceries still lie ahead. That happens only when people are beginning to worry more about inflation than about the competitive risks of price increases. One of inflatioo's dangers is that it incites people to try to protect themselves by means that appravate the inflation and make the economy less efficient.

The Federal Reserve Board has already taken steps to hold the inflation rate down, and it may have to take more. That means reducing the speed at which the economy is growing. The two presidential candidates seem to be counting essentially on fast growth to resolve the deficits and bring the country's accounts back into balance. But the increasing uncasiness about prices sug-gests that inflation, and any strategy that means more of it, are not going to be options. -THE WASHINGTON POST.

Ben Ali's Tunisia: The Arab World's Quick and Quiet Reformation

WASHINGTON - Tunisia has changed more in nine months than in the previous 30 years. A country has been saved from probable chaos and set on the road to phiralism and economic openness. It is one of the most encouraging developments in the Arab world. But because no one has died and the jails are being emptied, the story has gone almost unreported. Tunis spruced itself up for a celebration at the end of July, the trium-phant celebration of what Zine al-Abidine Ben Ali has done since he deposed Habib Bourguiba last No-vember. President Ben Ali had called an extraordinary congress of the rul-ing party; hundreds of reporters were invited. Then the Iran-Iraq war sod-dealy lurched toward an end, and King Hussein of Jordan cut loose the West Bank. Only one American writsia's fundamentalists, the Islamic Tenlegal opposition parties spoke, somedency Movement, or MTI, were mod-erate by most standards, as the name implies. But Mr. Bourguiba, the secular modernizer who once urged Tunisians not to fast during Ramadan, tried to destroy the MTI. Last fall, a court decided to execute four clearly guilty saboteurs and to sentence the MTT's more moderate leadership to long terms or life at hard labor. That wasn't enough for Mr. Bourguiba; he decided to retry them and execute the leaders. It was a dangerous moment.

Events since last November have been more dramatic than even the most optimistic would have predicted.

All sides were being alienated: the political opposition, Mr. Bourguba's own allies, the powerful unions and the religious opposition. But Mr. Bourguiba then made a mistake that would help correct many other mistakes. Last October, he scrapped yet another prime minis-ter, Rachid Sfar, and named Mr. Ben Ali to the post. Mr. Ben Ali, 51, was trained as a soldier in France and as a military intelligence officer in the United States; he had made a name as a tough security officer. He must have seemed the ideal man to prosecate the MTI and others. But within a month Mr. Ben Ali had gone on television with a document, signed by several doctors, declaring Mr. Bourguiba senile. The sycophantic bu-reancrats around the old man were quietly removed from their posts. The Second Tunisian Republic, as people were soon calling it, was born. The events of last November caught the attention of the world. What has happened since has been largely ignored. But it has been more dramatic than even the most optimistic observers would have predicted. Mr. Ben Ali, the security man, opened the prison doors: virtually every pohocal prisoner is now out of jail, even some accused of plotting coups. The MTI leaders are free. The thing unheard of in Tunisian history. The most prominent exiled figure, Ahmed Ben Salah, whose party re-mains illegal, was pardoued and allowed to return; a new Parties Law will probably make his party legal. Late last year, in municipal elec-oons, independent candidates for the first time defeated the ruling party at grass roots levels. The party itself, which for years was called the Destourian Socialist Party, changed its name to Constitutional Democratic Rally, the RCD, in January. Although "constitutional" and "destourian" have the same meaning, the official English and French names of the party no longer use the Arabic word. Yet Mr. Ben Ali has emphasized Tunisia's Arab and Islamic identity as never before. Although Tunisia has been the headquarters of the Arab League since Egypt's peace with Israel, it often seemed in but not quite of the Arab world, Now, Mr. Ben Ali prefers to use Arabic, not French, and is seeking good relations with all Arab countries. His prompt restoration of countries. Firs prompt restoration or relations with Libya caused a few jit-ters in the West, but he followed by restoring ties with Egypt. While main-taining good relations with France, he has continued to enhance U.S. links.

The longtime ambassador to Washington has just been given the No. 2 job in the foreign ministry. Mr. Ben Ali's economic policies would warm the hearts of Ronald Reagan and Margaret Thatcher, After a quarter-century of experimentation in statism, the party has dropped "socialist" from its name and pledged to privatize hundreds of state companies. Ioefficient prestige projects have been dropped, the private sector is being revitalized. Foreign investment is encouraged and a dormant stock exchange revived. Yet the state is intervening to balance the distribuwestern and southern desert regions. been renamed in some provincial towns, but Mr. Ben Ali has said that Ben Ali, while promising more jobs, has warned that in the short term employment may suffer.

The party itself has democratized; the July congress created a much broader-based organization with a more regionally balanced central committee. Bot Mr. Ben Ali's real leadership style may be more evident in a decision to reduce the political bureau to six men from the more than 20 it had been under Mr. Bourguiba. Of these six, two rule alongside Mr. Ben Ali as a sort of unofficial trium-virate: Prime Minister Hedi Baccouche and Interior Minister Habib Ammar. Mr. Baccouche, a key party figure, and Mr. Ammar, the National Guard commander, covered Mr. Ben Ali's political and military flanks then he seized power in November. As the party broadened membership, it narrowed the core leadership cadre. Mr. Bourguiba's era has passed but he is not an unperson. Bourgniba statues have come down and streets have the very real contributions of the former leader's younger years will oot be forgotten. The main street of Tunis is still Habib Bourguiba Avenue, What would have seemed impossible a year ago is that so few seem to care. Only one of Mr. Bourguiba's cohorts is on trial, and he for outright corruption. Mr. Ben Ali has made changes at his pace and within his limits, yet he is encouraging discussion of those limit — unusual for the Arab world, and revolutionary for Tunis. The security man turned democrat, the general turned civilian leader, is a short, stocky, boxer-like figure with a clear vision of where he is going. He has already built an impressive record, but so quietly that no one seems aware.

French diplomatic circles were speculating whether Hitler's visit was just part of a gigantic game of bluff, or whether he really wanted to see whether the fortifications at that strategic Rhine bridgehead are fat enough advanced to hold off an invasion from the French Army trying to come to the aid of the Czechs.

disaster. The nomination of Senator Dan Quayle is only the most recent example. It is unclear how the office was con-ceived, or why it was provided for in the Constitution. The first Constitutional Constitution. The first Constitutional or Convention left few notes behind to ex-plain its origin. Alexander Hamilton C noted in the Federalist Papers that e the office had been objected to as su-refluous, if not mischievous." Evident-I to bjection was ignored. Ironically, Hamilton may have been a victim of complications ansing from the inclusion of the vice presidential office in the Constitution. When Aaron Burr tied the Constitution. When Aaron Burr tied with Thomas Jefferson in the presidential election of 1800, Hamilton threw his sup-port to Jefferson when the vote reached awarded the vice presidency, and it seems that this, among other things, led Burr to the duel with Hamilton in 1804 in which Hamilton was killed. Once the office was established, concern over the vice presidency began early. The first vice president, John Adams, described it as "the most insignificant office that ever the invention of man contrived or his imagination conceived." Immediately following the Washington-Adams administration, the vice presidency became the object In 1801, a proposal to abolish it failed by a vote of 19 to 12 in the Senate.

In 1803, the 12th Amendment was adopted, joining the nominees for president and vice president as a single ticket and significantly lowering the status of the vice presidency. The office oo longer went to the man who finished second in the presidential race. Instead, nomination to the ticket doomed a candidate to the No. 2 spot right from the start. The partisan notion of balancing the ticket took over and has continued to this day, as evidenced by the joining of Michael Dukakis and Lloyd Bentsen.

Consider the presumed advantages of a balanced ticket; Mr. Dukakis was against the war in Vietnam, while Mr. Benisen made Ralph Yarborough's opposition to it a major point in his campaign to defeat the senator during the Texas Democratic primary in 1970; Mr. Dukakis promises to improve and liberalize the Supreme Court, while Mr. Bentsen charged Senator Yarborough with having beirayed the South by voting against the confirmation of two conservative judges, Clement Haynesworth and G. Harrold Carswell, to the court. In the past, people of presidential cali-ber refused the vice presidential nomination. In 1848, Daniel Webster rejected the

By Eugene V. McCarthy W OODVILLE, Virginia – Perhaps structive change in oational politics abolition of the vice presidency. The history of this office, and of its ment, is one of distraction and of near-disaster. The nomination of Sector Dar

Recent experience with vice presiden-tial nominees also argues strongly for the abolition of the office. Richard Nixon, in the 1952 campaign, would have been a serious handicap to almost any candidate other than Dwight Eisenhower. Spiro Agnew, although he escaped exposure during the campaign of 1968, became an embarrassment to President Nixon. The Democratic Party fared badly with Thomas Eagleton m 1972 and with Geraldine Ferraro in 1984.

There are, then, at least four good reasons for abolishing the office: 1), The "balancing" provided by a vice president on the ticket only con-fuses the election campaign. 2). The office puts people in line for the presidency who should be anywhere but in line --- and would certainly not be there if not first chosen to be vice presidents.

3), In a number of cases the office can waste a good politician for four or eight years, possibly forever. A vice president, after all, does little or nothing, and may lose control over his own political future. 4), The vice presidency can have oegative effects upon the political party in the nominee's home state. ### Protests Over 'Last Temptation' Raise Multiple Issues

Regarding the concerned Christians who are up in arms over Martin Scorsese's film "The Last Temptation of Christ," the movie is based on a book by a serious author, Nikos Kazantzakis, presenting his fundamental views on the question of choice in the face of temptation. Where were all those irate people when the genus of Mozart was so cheaply degraded in "Amadeus," a movie based on historical inaccuracies? And where are all those good Christians when movie after movie depicts brutal violence, when every other movie advertisement depicts a hero or heroine sporting a gun? It seems that making a movie that poses serious questions about choice and the deeper understanding of life is a sin, but sending one's "brother" through a plate glass window or watching one's fellow man twist and turn under a barrage of bullets is taken for granted. E. SHIRE.

Regarding "While Judging Such a Sto-ry They Should Seek the Spirit," by Peter Bien (Meanwhile, Aug. 12): The question is not whether Jesus had a love life, nor even whether he was a frustrated individual, but whether some sort of respect is not due to a person who represents, in effect, considerably more

Bhutan's Independent Way

Steven Wong ("The Reality of Tibet," Letters, July 20) says Bhutan retains "not much independence" with regard to India. The small Himalayan country has an independent foreign policy, which, in many international forums, such as the UN General Assembly, has run counter to Indian motions. The only involvement of India in Bhutan that I know of has been considerable help with Bhutan's defense against China and aid for bydroelectric and industrial projects.

You will be appalled to learn that the army's proposed "solution" to this prob-lem is to put a decal on the vending The writer, a former Democratic senator from Minnesota and presidential candidate, contributed this to The New York Times machines, with a little picture - really showing a man with a vending machine falling on him. Is that pathetic, or what? This is the U.S. Army, for God's sake! This is the same outfit that defeated Grenada in a matter of days! Let's see some spine, here! Let's see a decal that says: "If this machine refuses to vend you any-ihing, open fire on the mother." Or, better yet, let's get right to the heart of this problem: Let's take some of our computerized laser-equipped $14-zillion tanks, if we can get the engines to start, and let's blow up a few wending-machine companies. The U.S. taxpayers would definitely support this. The taxpayers are sick and support nils, the tapayers are size and tired of putting money into vending ma-chines and getting either (a) nothing or (b) a bag of "potato chips" containing 8,765 molecule-size fragments, which, if you could somebow assemble them, would result in maybe four actual chips, as the basis for decisively civilizing total weight zero, so that the vending-machine industry has been able to ob-tain all the chips it has sold for the past DAVID SPOONER 27 years from a single medium-size pota-to, street value $389 million. The Italian team was founded in 1930 as a school of aerobarics. Since 1956, it has been a separate unit of the air force. With the Patrouille de France and the Red Arrows of Britain, it is one of three such demonstration teams in Western Europe, ranking with the Blue Angels and the Thunderbirds in the United States.

The teams are considered to he good for public relations and for the morale of the air forces concerned. Whether the teams have military value is open to question.

"If the West Germans have banned such displays in future." said an official for the North Atlantic Treaty Organization, "it seems clear they are not considered essential for Western defense." Despite the daredevil image of the stunt teams, the pilots chosen to fly with them are men with thousands of hours of flying experience.

Of the three pilots killed in the collision at Ramstein, West Germany, for example, Lieutenant Colonel Mario Naldini, 41, had 3,900 flight hours; Lieutenant Colonel Ivo Nutarelli, 38, had 3,800, and Captain Giorgio Alessio had 1.600.

To join the nine-man team, a must have a minimum of 1,000 hours of flight time and at least six years of experience. Military officials say that the team members have an average of 3,000 hours and an average age of 32.

"You can't find better trained or more courageous pilots," said an official of the International Aeronanucal Federation in Paris, "This was an accident that happened in milliseconds. There is always a General Kiszczak has demanded that the strikes end before any discussions begin, the sources said, But following a Communist Party Central Committee meeting over the weekend that clearly ruled out any return to free trade unions, the workers are unsure whether meeting the condition for talks is worth-

"The influence of the church authorities will probably be enough to prevent the whole matter of dialogue from fading away before it can even begin," an informed source said. "But whether it will be able to go beyond the first meeting is questionable at this point."

In a statement from the Lenin shipyard Monday. Mr. Walesa reaffirmed his own demand that the government agree to discuss the legalization of Solidarity before the strikes end Repeating his willingness to participate in talks, Mr. Walesa never-theless added, "When it appears that these talks open perspectives of solving our problems and especially of the issue of Solidarity, the strikes will be suspended."

In essence, these offers have consisted of inviting church and Solidarity leaders to participate in a minority role in government institudons such as the parliament or the "Consultative Council." which was sel up in 1986 lo advise General Jaruzelski.

In exchange, the participants are expected to support the govern-ment's overall policies and help ral-ly society behind them.

Neither the church nor Solidarity, however, has been willing to surrender independence. Their demand is that Communist authorities grant them recognition as independent, sovereign partners.

In this sense, General Jaruzelski's move toward accepting Mr. Waless and other Solidarity leaders as polential participants at a "roundtable" is a significant step toward compromise. But the government, church and opposition must still find a way to work together without resolving the sceningly insoluble problem of Solidarity's right to exist.

Rap Hip-Hops Into Mainstream

By Glenn Collins

A stupid def. it's bum-rushin' the mainstream. It's housin' 'em - word, homes. Translation: Rap is so incredi-hly fine, it's breaking down the doors of mainstream society. It's bringing down the house — and that's the truth, friend.

The enduring and expanding popularity of rap music — rhyth-mic, rhymed chanting to a driving beat - has set off an increasingly broad-based cultural trend. Like early rock 't' roll and the pervasive youth culture it.

spawned, the influence of rap is now evident in U.S. language, music fashion and advertising. Hip-hop, as the culture of rap is called, originated among young blacks io New York City's Bronx in the 1970s. Instead of fading like many previous fads, rap's energy has become increasingly ir-resistible to an international audience of teen-agers and preteen-agers, As in other subcultural trends that have matured into mass phenomena, rap language and style are entering older, more racially diverse, middle-class and suburban communities. "Rap has really begun to get around the mainstream culture," said Robert Farris Thompson, a professor of African and Afro-American art history at Yale University.

Rappers themselves are sur-prised by their broadening popu-larity. ## Mexican Play Dissects Power

By Larry Rohter New York Times Service EXICO CITY - At the en-M trance to the Teatro El Galeon in Mexico City, where "Nadie Sabe Nada" is performed nightly to rapt and often indignant audiences, a large sign is displayed.

"Please pardon whatever dis-comfort this work may cause you," it reads. The message is out so much an apology as a warning, and never has it been more appropriate. No Mexican play in decades has created as much controversy or inspired so strong a reaction from the country's political and intellectual elite.

Billed simply as "a thriller in two acts" and taking as its point of departure what one character calls "a Mexican Watergate," Vicente Leñero's drama dissects the relationship between press and govern-ment, suggesting that both are mor-asses of corruption, treachery and servility. "Nadie Sabe Nada" — "Nobody Knows Anything" - revolves around a reporter, Pepe Gutiérrez, whose troubles begin when a source offers bim secret documeots "straight from the presideot's desk" pertaining to a scandal whose exact nature the audience never learns. Soon agents of the Ministry of the Interior and the federal prosecutor's office are trying to recover the papers even as they seek to eliminate each other.

After threats, bribes and mayhem in which three men are murdered and a woman is raped, the papers return to government hands. As the play ends, the chief prosecutor is on the phone, preening at praise from a superior at the president's office, perhaps even the president himself. That's what we are here for, sir" are her final words.

According to Ledero, "This play is not the denunciation of a particular person but simply the presentation of a particular type of behavior and set of relationships." Leñero, who is also a novelist and managing editor of the independent news magazine Proceso, con-

New Issues Are Awakening Nairobi's Sleepy Exchange By ROGER BROWNING

Special to the Herald Tribune

AIROBI - Just as they have for the past 34 years, Nairobite stoubt as they have for the past 34 years, Nairobi's stockbrokers meet four times a week in the upstairs coffee lounge of the New Stanley Hotel. In time-homored factions of the New Stanley Hotel. time-honored fashion, Prahbhat Chavda, a dealer with one of Kenya's six stockbrokerages, reads out a list of the 39 major shares of the 70-odd listed on the Nairobi Stock Exchange. Dealers from the find the dot the Nairobi Stock Exchange. Dealers from the five other brokerages call out prices for buyers and sellers of the stocks, the most actively traded. (There is a separate, weekly session for the others, some of which are hardly traded at all.)

The session at the New Stanley is over in minutes, and a steward serves coffee in silver pots. Transactions are arranged brokers' offices. There is not a ly to change soon. The oonconvertible Kenyan shilling and tight exchange cootrols that delay remittance of dividends abroad have lamely ruled out for the source of dividends abroad have largely ruled out foreign interest in the exchange. Total capitalization, excluding government stocks, is around 8.1 billion shillings ($440 million) and the annual volume of shares traded just 6 million. No foreign stocks are listed, although the Kenyan subsidiaries of such companies as BAT Industries PLC and Barclays PLC are.

Still, a wave of new share issues has brought something of a

The market index, calculated weekly from the prices of 17 selected shares, closed last Thursday up 1.52 to 844.86, a new high. That compares with 739.9 at the beginning of the year, and around 500 at the end of 1986.

In June, 7.5 million shares in the state-owned Kenya Commercial Bank were offered to the public, by far the largest share issue in Kenyan history. The issue was oversubscribed more than three times, attracting 118,000 applicants. At an offer price of 20 shillings a share, the issue raised 150 million shillings, and it put about 20 percent of the bank's capital in the public's hands.

"That indicates that there are a lot of funds around that could be deployed in investment," Mr. Karinki said. The problem, he said, is that demand for shares far outstrips availability. Around 60 percent of shares are held by institutions, which tend to hold on to them, said Mr. Kariuki, OWEVER, several more issues are in the pipeline. National Bank of Kenya, the country's other state-owned bank, is expected to make a public offering this year or early next year. Nation Printers & Publishers, holding company of the Aga Khan's Daily Nation newspaper, said in July that it would issue 2.5 million additional shares. Some will go to current shareholders but the rest will be offered to the public, which will thencontrol a majority of the company's shares.

Total Oil Products East Africa Ltd. has been authorized to make a private placement in September of 3 million shares, of which 10 percent will go to employees and the rest to selected investor

Mr. Kariuki said the government wanted to encourage widespread ownership of shares and had come to realize that share sales were a useful instrument to promote "Kenyanization," the policy of putting Kenyans in control of industry and the economy, where foreign control is still widespread.

Bank Bid On Irving Dropped Italian Group Cites Fed Ruling

Renter Renters NEW YORK — Banca Com-merciale Italiana of Milan with-drew Monday from the bidding war for Irving Bank Corp. of New York, accusing the Federal Reserve Board of changing its interpreta-tion of U.S. law to hinder the Ital-ian bank's offer ian bank's offer.

Banca Commerciale, whose friendly takeover offer had been accepted by Irving to ward off a hostile bid from Bank of New York Co., said it was dropping its bid because its government-owned par-ent saw a Fed decision two weeks ago as an impediment.

The move appeared to strength-en Bank of New York's hand in its 11-month straggle to take over Ir-ving. Bank of New York values its latest offer at $1.4 billion.

But after the Banca Commerciale announcement, Irving rapidly said it would still seek an alternative buyer to Bank of New York. The Fed ruled that Istituto per la

Ricostruzione Industriale, the Italian state holding company, had to file a separate application with the U.S. central bank because the Fed considered it a company rather than an Italian government agency. Banca Commerciale maintained that its application was sufficient. The Fed decision, "changing its established interpretation, represents a new and unforescen element" that prevents the bank from pursuing its offer for Irving, Banca mmerciale said, IRI's holdings include steel, shipbuilding, banking and Alitalia, the national airline. IRI would have had to give the Fed financial data on all these companies. And under U.S. banking law, it would have faced the eventual divestiture either of its nonbanking activities or of Irving, had the Banca Com-merciale bid been successful.

The Italian bank offered $80 a share for 51 percent of Irving's shares, plus other considerations. Bank of New York is offering .675 of its shares and $15 cash for each Irving share; conditioned on the takeover becoming friendly. It is seeking to buy all the shares.

Irving shares gained $2.375 to close Monday at $69.625 on the

Now their employer, Kukje Corp., plans to capitalize on the Secul Olympics to jump out of the blocks with a pressige brand of its own: Pro-Specs.

Pro-Specs? It may not yet be a household word, but Kuige strat-egists believe that a $5.5 million investment in the right to become the olucial shoe of the 1966 Summer Olympics will bring the brand enough recognition to compete with the famous-name tennis shoes that it makes for foreign clients.

Olympics fever has similarly struck scores of other South Korean companies, which see the Games as a golden opportunity to prime their export drives with high visibility for previously obscure brands.

Likewise, the media excite-ment growing around the Games, which begin Sept. 17 and end Oct. 2, may prove to be a turning point for South Korean industry as a whole, a chance to to show the world how far it has advanced.

Primerica Corp. Accepts a Bid Of $1.7 Billion

GREENWICH, Connection -Commercial Credit Group Inc. said Monday that it had agreed to buy Primerica Corp. for about $1.7 billion in cash and stock, but the shares of the target company fell as investors apparently did not like the securities portion of the deal. On the New York Stock Ex-fell 62.5 cents, to $29.50 a share. Stock in Commercial Credit, which was spun off by Control Data Corp. in 1986, fell 75 cents a share, to $24.50.

Under an agreement approved by the directors of both companies, Primerica stockholders would receive one share of Commercial Credit common stock plus $7 in cash for each of their shares. Thus, the face value of the offer was $31.50 on Monday.

Professional traders said they were not surprised that Primerica's stock fell because both companies have insurance interests and deals involving insurance regulators face delays. They also ooted that investors prefer cash deals.

The deal requires approval by shareholders of Primerica, which is based in Greenwich. Sanford L Weill, chairman of Commercial Credit of Baltimore, is to be chairman and president of the new company, which will keep the Primerica name. its municipal bond department, Smith Barney recently dismissed five top executives from its public finance division. Wall Street professionals have said Mr. Tsai overreacted to losses in Smith Barney's risk arbitrage de-partment last year, closing the whole operation and taking a $70 million loss. They said other risk arbitragers recovered their losses in numerous takeover deals that arose from the lower stock prices.

Uoder Mr. Tsai's direction, Primerica embarked oo a strategy of simplifyiog its operatioos and strengthening its financial position.

To that end, the company said in April it would sell Musicland Group Inc., the largest U.S. spe-cialty retailer of prerecorded music and video home cotertainment products, and three of its insurance subsidiaries in deals that would net about $700 million. Mr. Tsai said at the time that the proceeds from the sales would be used to reduce debt. Based on assets, Primerica is much larger than Commercial Cred-it — it has $35 billion under management, compared with the $4 bil-lion Commercial Credit reported in total assets at the end of June.

Foreign Banks Concerned at Lack of Progress in Argentina Debt Talks

By Richard A. Kessler Washington Post Service

BUENOS AIRES - Brazil got a $1.4 billion loan agreement with the International Monetary Fund last week. Mexico promises sensible policies. But bankers here fear their third prob-

The country, which owes a total of $56.3 billion to public and private lenders, has fallen behind in its interest payments. And the government has offered few concrete proposals to get the economy back into shape.

President Raúl Alfonsin's government wants a new $1.2 billion standby accord from the IMF, covering the period ending when the current government hands the reins to its elected successor at the end of 1989.

But well-connected banking sources say talks are at a standstill with the IMF, the international agency that provides financial assistance to cash-strapped nations on condition that they reform their economies.

Public Works Minister Rodolfo Ter-ragno recently estimated that state-run corporations have losses of $2 billion a VCST.

That is also the amount that Argentina hopes to raise from its creditor banks in new funds under a loan deal for this year and next.

Without that, the government says it cannot meet interest payments of an esti-mated $4.7 billion to $4.9 billion this year. And with interest rates rising around the globe, the final amount could be even larg-

Brazil Takes Over Mining Compiled by Our Staff From Dispatches

BRASILIA - The Constituent Assembly voted Monday to nationalize the country's mineral resources and restrict mining to Brazilian-controlled companies.

The measure, which is to be included in the new national constitution next month, limits prospecting and exploration to Brazilians and companies described as "businesses of national capital."

A day earlier, the assembly approved definitions of "Brazilian businesses" and "Brazilian businesses of national capital." The text said that Brazilian businesses need only be formed under Brazilian law and maintain headquarters and management in the country.

Businesses of national capital are required to demonstrate that "effective control," such as the majority of voting shares in a company, is held by residents of Brazil. (AFP, Reuers) prices it charged on oil when price controls were in effect has been approved by the government, the Energy Department said Monday.

Texaco announced the planned agreement in February. The company will make an initial payment of $400 million and a second pay-ment of $190 million within 18 months. It will then make four an-nual payments of $165 million plus interest to satisfy the claim.

The department said $120 million will be paid through a special refund to claimants who bought refined products from Texaco between 1973 and 1981, when oil price controls were in place.

CHICAGO - Richard J. Dennis, known as the "Prince of the Pit" before the October stock market collapse sent his commodities trading business into a oosedive, said Monday that he was resigning from finance to concentrate on poblics.

The Associated Press

Mr. Dennis, 39, said the fortune — reportedly around $200 millioo — that he had amassed in 18 years of trading would serve as a launch pad for his full-time involvement in "public policy and political endeavors."

There is only so much satisfaction and utility to the making of money," Mr. Dennis said in a statement. "I am fortunate to have enough assets and opportunities to try to make a signifi-cant impact on our political lives. As I approach 40 years of age, I believe it is time for me to take on this new set of challenges."

Mr. Dennis said he would not run for office but would busy himself with writing and speaking about public policy and "active involvement with voters and candidates."

Mr. Dennis was national co-chairman for the unsuccessful Democratic presidential campaign of Bruce Babbitt, the former governor of Arizona. He also has made sizable contributions to various Democratic campaigns since 1980. Mr. Dennis donated $10 million to establish the Roosevelt Center, a liberal think-tank with offices in Washington and Chicago. He also is among the leading financial backers of "People for the American Way," a liberal group that was started as a counterpoint to the conservative Moral Majority. A native of Chicago's South Side, Mr. Dennis began his career in the financial world at 17 as a $1.60-an-hour brokerage house runner. After graduating from De Paul University with a degree in philosophy, he bought his first ex-change seat — on the tiny MidAmerica Commodity Exchange — at age 21. He now owns seats on all the major commodities exchanges, and he runs two companies: C&D Commodities, s futures trading partner-ship of which be is managing partner, and Richard J. Dennis & Co., a commodities trading advising firm for managed futures accounts.

His uncanny success as a trader earned him the niekname "Prince of the Pit" on the floors of antile Exchange. But his fortune seemed to turn after last October's collapse, in which C&D Commod-ities reportedly lost $10 millioo.

Two public commodity funds Mr. Dennis launched last year in conjunction with Drexel Burnham Lambert Inc. also fell on hard times after the collapse. After they lost more than 50 percent of their $115 million combined initial value, Mr. Dennis suspended trading last April on the Richard J. Dennis Preferred Futures Funds 1 and II. Both funds resumed trading on Aug. 3, after a vote of confidence by investors, and each had lost about 3.5 percent when trading was halted for good on Friday, said Mark Walsh, a Dennis & Co. spokesman.

Occidental to Resume Output in 2 Oil Fields

LOS ANGELES - Occidental Petroleum Corp. said Monday that it would resume production later this year in two oil fields idled by a July 6 fire in the North Sea.

In its first definitive statement on the return of the two fields to working order, the diversified energy giant said it would resume production at the Scapa and Claymore fields in the fourth quarter of this year.

"We had originally thought it would be a little earlier," an Occidental spokesman said. Occidental lost production from its Clay-more. Scapa and Piper Alpha fields after a fire destroyed the Piper Alpha platform, killing 167 workers and injuring dozens more. Since the Claymore and Scapa fields route their output through Piper Alpha, all three have been oous-able. redirect output from the Scapa and Claymore fields to bypass the Piper Alpha," the spokes man said.

hac is discussing a possible merger with Credit Sursse First Boston Ltd that would form a private company of the big U.S. securities firm and its European investment bank, First Boston has announced. The talks are being held by the two furns along with Credit Suisse, the Swiss bank that is First Bosson's partner in Credit Suisse First Boston, the U.S. firm said in a brief statement Sunday. It said the talks aimed to create a siglobal investment banking firm by joining the businesses" of the intertwined concerns.

The annouocement followed months of rumors and speculation about the talks between the companics. It was the first official confirmation that the two were seeking to take the merged company private. The merger talks were disclosed in a news report in April and con-firmed in May by the companies. Since the May announcement, First Boston's stock has gained more than $15 a share.

First Bostoo sbares gained $1.125 on Monday on the New York Stock Exchange to close at $44.625, after having gained $1 in trading on Friday.

First Boston said the companies could not give assurances that a marger would be completed, but William W. Galvin, a spokesman for First Boston, said that the parties hoped to close a deal before the end of the year.

Traders said the latter statement had encouraged investors. "If they are already talking about a completion date, they must be getting awfully close," said an arbitrager quoted by Renters.

Traders said many on Wall Street were looking for a buyout valuation on First Boston shares of about $45 to $48 a share. Like other securities firms, First

Boston has experienced some turmoil this year. Lower trading volume on the stock market since the October collapse has reduced profit opportunities. The volume of securities underwritings has dried up, and competition has intensified. cutting into profit margins.

Moreover, First Boston has been hit by one of the most dramatic drains of talent on Wall Street in recent years, led by the defections of the co-heads of its profitable investment banking division, Bruce Wasserstein and Josepb R. Perella. The two merger specialists left to set np their own firm.

First Boston had earnings of $108.9 million, or $3.12 a share, in 1987. In the second quarter of this year, net income was $43.7 million, or $1.20 a share, compared with a loss of $13.2 million in the second quarter of 1987.

Credit Suisse First Boston is a holding company based in Zug, Switzerland, that is the parent to more than a dozen operations, most of them based in London. Those units offer a variety of investment services, including trading in securities, Eurobonds and futures. Last year the company had carnings of $144 million on revenue of $331 million. Credit Strisse and First Boston have been affiliated under a complex arrangement dating from August 1978. Crédit Suisse owns 60 percent of Credit Suisse First Boston, and First Boston owns 40 per-Cent in turn, Credit Suisse First Boston owns almost 40 percent of the shares outstanding of First Boston, with the balance owned by employces and public shareholders.

The statement said that, after any transaction, Credit Suisse would own 40 percent of the new private company, with the balance owned by employees of First Bos-ton and Credit Susse First Boston, as well as a limited number of instinuional investors. The First Boston announcement did not say who would head the new firm if the merger were completed. But industry sources said that the chief executive of the merged enoty would be Peter T. Buchanan, president and chief ex-ecutive of First Boston. John M. Hennessy, chairman

STOCKHOLM -- Volvo AB is expected to report flat secondquarter net profit on Tuesday, with TOKYO - Matsosbita first-half figures still reflecting Electric Industrial Co. sided losses caused by a three-week strike Monday with American Tele-phone & Telegraph Co. and in January, analysts said. Analysts in a survey gave esti-mates of first-balf profit ranging from 3.4 billion to 3.7 billion krooor ($530 million to $575 million). against 4.29 billion for the first half of 1987. That would leave secondquarter profit roughly in line with the 2.25 billion kronor reported a year earlier. "The first quarter did not look good, and hopefully there will be a recovery." said Nigel Yandell of Enskilda Securities.

"The key fact is that Volvo's reliance nn cars is much lower than it was," he said. "Cars accounted for 97 percent of earnings in 1983, but this bad fallen to 60 percent last veloped by AT&T with Sun has been challenged by an in-dustry group, led by Interna-tional Business Machines Vear.

The slack has been taken up by trucks, with 22 percent, and food, with 7 percent. Volvo's acquisition of Leyland Bus Group Ltd. of Britain in March showed that the company also was aiming to become a major European producer in this market.

Brian Knox of Kleinwort Grieveson and Klaes Vikbladh of Warburg Securities said the star performer in the forthcoming figures would be Volvo's truck division. "The truck market has been much better than most people think, especially in Western Enrope," Mr. Vikbladh said. Volvo estimated that its car divisioo profit declined by 23 percent last year because of the lower dollar, despite attempts to reduce the loss through currency hedging. "The market has still not woken up to the fact that Volvo has become less vulnerable to cyclical fluctuations in the car market." said Peter Colmer of Svenska International. Even car sales in the United States, though down, seemed to be holding up better than for many of Volvo's European competitors, Mr. Yandell said.

There was intense speculation earlier this year. fueled by repeated statements by company officials, that Volvo's Provendor food divi-sion was about to make a major acquisition. The company still has estimated liquid assets of 22 billion kronor, but the takeover talk has died away. "They looked at most food companies in Europe and the United States and appear to have decided that the price was too high," said Mr. Vikbladh of Warburg.

In its first-quarter figures, Volvn put the cost of the white-collar workers' strike at about 800 million kronor.

In the longer term, Enskilda is optimisoc about Volvo. In a recent analysis sent to investors, it argued for a major upgrading of the company's stock.

Pratt Cuts Jobs In 3-Year Plan To Lower Costs

The Associated Press EAST HARTFORD, Con-necticut - Pratt & Whitney, a unit of United Technologies Corp., said Monday that it was eliminating 1,042 jobs as part of a plan to save the company $300 million a year over the next three years.

Pratt & Whitney said the latest cuts brought to about 2.650 the number of jobs eliminated. The cuts are intended to put Pratt & Whitney in a better positinn to compete with General Electric Co. and Rollis-Royce PLC.

Pratt & Whitney's share of the commercial market dropped from 100 percent in 1974 to about 40 percent in 1987. Similar declines occurred in its military business. A Pratt & Whitney spokes-man said that General Electric now had about 40 percent of the market.

Kim Bum II, director of the Seoul Olympic Organizing Com-mittee's marketing division, said he had advised Korean sponsors to temper their expectations of Olympics magic. He said that some were prepared to bid so much money for sponsorship rights that they would have had bttle left over for a mar-

The company is focusing its export campaign on Europe, preferring to take a timid approach to the United States because it fears consumers will remember the unpopular Specs brand that Kukje

The dollar rose to close at 1.8725 Deutsche marks from 1.8585 DM on Friday, and to 134.55 yen from 133.80. It closed at 1.5790 Swiss frances, up from 1.5680, and at 6.3535 French frances, from 6.3115, The British pound closed at $1.6795, slightly higher than Fri-day's final $1.6865.

The market is preoccupied with the upcoming Labor Day hnliday," said Tom Benfer of the Bank of Montreal. "The dollar strengthened on the day but it was slow dealing." Labor Day in the United States is on Monday. Traders said that the week preceding the U.S. Labor Day weekend was typically quiet.

"There's no one to push the market either way," one trader said. Dealers expected the lackluster conditions to continue at least until the U.S. government employment figures for August are released on Friday.

"Everyone seems to be treading water before the employment num-ber," said James Leatherberry, an analyst at Banque Nationale de Paris.

> Rettern SYDNEY — The Austra-lian dollar is likely to rise to around 85 U.S. cents by Christmas before falling domestic interest rates and lower commodity prices pull it down, a Bank of New Zealand report said Monday.

It is bullish nn the currency, now worth about 81 cents, because it expects higher metal prices as industrial production returns to normal after the summer Jull in the Northern Hemisphere.

It said a stable to weak U.S. dollar, firm short-term rates and tight monetary policy would aid the Australian unit. But, the bank said, declining long-term rates" eventually will "drag down their shortterm counterparts."

Japanese Rate Revisions Threaten Public Works

TOKYO - Decontrol of interest rates is pushing Japan's public works finances toward a crisis as depositors desert the Postal Savings System, which funds the largest share, government and industry sources say. The postal system, called Yucho, is the world's biggest investor. But, the sources said, the cash it has available to invest in low-interest official funds will drop significant-ly after 30 million yen ($225 billion) in long-term deposits mature in 1990.

The crisis is sparking debate over whether public works should de-pend so heavily on Yucho money, and it has injected urgency into the decontrol of interest rates.

"We are considering alternative ways to raise money for public works in the face of a significant shrinkage in Yucho funds," a Finance Ministry official said.

The ministry runs the Trust Fund Borean. That agency chanpels cash, mainly from Yucho, to national government agencies and companies, municipal governments and private companies, all at low interest rates linked to 10-year government bond yields. Financial industry analysts said the system will be given more freedom to invest in domestic and forsign bonds and possibly stocks, up to 15 million yen by the end of March 1992.

The deregulation of interest rates for small savers planned in the next year means further increases in our costs," the Postal Ministry official said. "So it is natural for Yncho to be given more freedom to manage its own funds in the market, rather than having to deposit most of it at the burean." Yucho made a 4.8 hillion yen profit on market investments in the fiscal year that ended March 31.

But what was once a quasi-religious show in a tent, which reached as far as the unamplified human voice carried, became, with the advent of television, "televangelism." Reaching millions, televangelism almost immediately took on the worst characteristics of network television. Emphasizing show over substance, televangelism became seemingly uninterrupted commer-cials, which bordered on professional fundraising and, inevitably, contributed to what the title of this new book calls a "Ministry of Evangelists have been on the American scene for two centuries. They have always stood off to the side of the established religious organizations. What has linked these preachers, past and present, is a sense of showmanship. Graf. 1gass At Rainy Ou The electronic church changed nothing but the numbers. Hundreds of thousands turned into tens of millions - in combined audiences and dollars. In a chapter titled "Gospel Eco. A nomics," Larry Martz, a senior writer for Newsweek, where this book originated with the help of Ginny Carroll, the magazine's Detroit bureau chief, writes: "Televangelism is big business. Across America in 1987, there were 17 221 television and 1,370 radio stations broad casting mostly religious programming. Seven cable TV networks did the same, and preachers bought time on hundreds of commercial stations.

Billy Graham started the boom in the 1950s Billy Graham statiet the ocom in the 1908 and and remains the elder statesman of televange. 22 lism. "A conservative Baptist and rectitudi-nous man." Martz writes, "Graham has been" accused of snuggling up too eagerly to presize 1 dents but oever of the sleazier excesses associated with televangelism."

The sleaze began to seep through with the 't disclosure that some of the leading televange... lists, who had preached to their electronic to flocks to send them money, had sexual encoun-ters with their followers. All this, of course, has, been reported in the last couple of years in ....; newspapers and magazines, not excluding 1 Piayboy, where Jessica Hahn, with whom Immy Bakker had a sexual encounter, later aping peared in photographs. # Graf, Agassi the Focal Points At Rainy Outset of U.S. Open

dances flying overhead and the pandful of fans sitting courtside and the Mets playing next door, the big-gest tennis questions Sunday concamed two people who were spending the day on courts other than those provided by the National Teo-

Could Steffi Graf possibly lose in Not likely. Could Andre Agassi possibly win it? Yes.

It, of course, is the 107th U.S. Open, which began soggily here Monday - persistent rain forced Money — persistent fam forced cincellation of the day's program for only five matches were com-bilited (see Scareboard). Attention is focused mostly on Graf, 19, who is trying to become the first person in 18 years to win the Grand Slam.

On Sunday the talent was scattered, Graf taking a tournament in New Jersey and Agassi winning in apstate New York. So on the last day of practice, there were sixthseeded Jimmy Connors and Aaron Krickstein, favorite slugging part-ners, on the Stadium Court, with Martina Navratilova's crew having just finished a workout.

The feeling semed nearly that Graf, who has lost but one set in winning the Australian, French and Wimbledon, is a lock to become the first woman since Margaret Court in 1970 to take all four majors. And Graf was sounding positively Mike Tysonish in her no-one-on-the-plana can-beat-me-when-I'm-playing-

Alke-this confidence last week. "It's hard to put it out of the way," she said, "when everyone's talking about it. It seems like there is a chance to do it, but if I can do it or not I can only say afterward." On the men's side, top-sceded Ivan Lendi has struggled with his game all season, and no one knows if the Lendl who shows up here will be the one who has been stubbing his toe or the one who smacked the seeded John McEnroe. Lendl couldn't have written up a much better draw than the one he got, with Agassi and Connors the major competition. It's been a bot summer for Agassi, 18, who on Sunday recorded his tour-leading seventh tournament victory. Agassi, seeded fourth at the open, has put that infernal American Question on hold for a while, but he has lost in the first round here the last two years. He has added finesse to power, cunning to athleticism, and has surprised those who remember when he tried to boom winners every time out.

But Lendl will play Amos Mansdorf in a first-round match Tuesday (at Lendi's request); only Agassi and Connors look like po-tential trouble in the top half of the draw. Connors will always be a factor in an open, but, simply put, he hasn't beaten Lendi in their last 16 meetings.

Agassi's development has overshadowed Becker, who's won five tournaments this year and is still kicking himself about losing the Wimbledon final to Edberg.

One intrigning possibility is a fourth-round match between Wilander and McEnroe, if all seeds hold until then. For McEnroe, this open may be a crossroads. His play has been crratic, and this two weeks may provide a chance for him to field around at the Canadian Open see if he's ever really going to return to his prehiatus form.

No one lova, third-seeded Chris Evert and doubts any more that Wilander is fourth-seeded Pam Shriver riding an all-court player, but the draw he finds himself in will make the road

Besides, Navratilova will go to her grave saying she already won the slam, having won the French, Wimbledon and the U.S. Open in 1984, then the Australian Open in '85, a kind of pseudo-slam. Team Navratilova was out in full force Sunday and looked confident that she wouldn't be shut out from a major title for the first time since 1980.

"I'm sure they'll do everything they can," Graf said, "and they'll he harder to heat and more psyched. But because they never won it won't be the reason why. In way, it's strange that Chris and Martina have never been able to do it. Because Chris was so dominating, and then Martina was winning everything."

Graf has zeroed in on the women with any likely chance of winning — Navratilova, Evert and fifth-seeded Gabriela Sabatini. Sabatini has been the only player who's shown the others this year that Graf is somewhat vulnerable, having beaten her twice.

After a fine start this year, Navratilova has slowed; she also has the worse draw, She will open with Catarina Lindqvist, who's reached the fourth round bere three straight years, while Graf gets Elizabeth Minter. Also, if Navratilova reaches the quarterfinals, she might have to face eighth-seeded Natalia Zvereva, who's already beaten her twice in 1988.

JUST A LITTLE HARDBALL - Joel Youngblood, who had been hit by a pitch to force in a run, bowled over Barry Lyons (right) to complete San Francisco's four-run ninth Sunday against the Mets. Lyons entered the game in the fourth, when catcher Mackey Sasser, legging out an infield single, tangled with pitcher Mike Krukow (above); Sasser left with a bruised knee and Krukow with an injured right shoulder. An inning earlier, Krukow had put Kevin McReynolds out for the day by plunking him on the forearm.

An attorney for the 1984 Olympic silver medalist entered the plea before Hillsborough Circuit Judge Harry Lee Coe.

Kimball is charged with two counts of drunken-driving manslaughter and three counts drunken-driving in an accident with serious injury. If convicted, he could face as much as 45 years in prison. Coe set a tentative trial date of Nov. 14 and allowed Kimball to remain free under $10,000 bond with no travel restrictions (his driving privilege has been suspen-ded). Coe said he was satisfied that Kimball posed no risk of flight.

Prosecutors have refused to release the results of Kimball's bloodalcohol tests from the Aug. I accidcot in the Tampa suhurb of Brandon. Authorities have acknowledged that it was over the level of 0.10, which by Florida law classifies a driver as drunk.

Kimhall subsequently competed for a spot on this year's Olympic team, but failed to make the squad.

Watson Blows Putt; Reid Wins Playoff

AKRON, Ohio (AP) — Tom Watson missed a 30-inch (.077-meter) par-saving putt, giving Mike Reid a playoff victory Sunday in the World Series of Golf. Watson, seeking his first victory of the season and second in four years, three-putted the first extra hole, and Reid became a winner with a routine par.

The lapse by Watson, who has been troubled by inconsistent short putting during the prolonged shump, cost him a chance to overtake Jack Nicklaus for the all-time money-winning lead on the PGA tour. Watson won $97,200 Sunday, pushing his career earnings to $4,971,113 (Nicklans has won $5,002,825); Reid's victory was worth $162,000.

Watson (a closing 68) and Reid (69) finished the regulation 72 holes at 275, 5-under-par on rain-soaked Firestone Country Club course.

The Associated Press

NEW YORK --- Lawrence Taylor, the all-pro linebacker of the New York Giants was suspended for 30 days Monday for violating the National Football League's substance abuse policy. The suspension will cause Taylor to miss the first four games of the season, starting with Monday night's game against the Super Bowl champion Washington Redskins.

Reports published Monday in Newsday and The Chicago Tribune said Taylor's preseason urinalysis tested positive and that the league's drug adviser, Dr. Forest S. Tennant, told the club Saturday the test showed a trace of cocaine. Joe Browne, an NFL spokesman, would say only that prohibited substances showed up during a recent drug test.

Coach Bill Parcells said that based on Taylor's behavior during training camp, the new violation surprised him. Seven, including defensive end Dexter Manley of Washington, served 30-day suspensions during training camp because, like Taylor, it was their second violation. The eighth, Tony Collins of Indianapolis. was suspended for the season for a third violation.

Browne said that teams were given their preseason tests at different times; because the Giants were tested later and the tests processed later, Taylor will miss four regular-season games rather than four exhibition games. He said the tests are "set around the team's schedule," indicating that the Giants determined that their test was later than those of other teams.

Those suspended during the preseason lost $500 a week — the training camp salary — while Taylor, whose annual salary is $1 million, will lose $62,500 a week unless the Giants choose to pay his salary

Exile Is What Moves Chile's Ariel Dorfman

By Carla Hall

Washington Pon Service WASHINGTON - "I don't want to write about torture all my life," says Ariel Dorfman. Part of being an exiled Chilean and a writer of novels and poems and essays is this dichotomy be-tween what he almost mysucally believes he must write and what he knows he must eventually get away from.

"I haven't chosen that," he says of his writing on the pain and sorrow many Chileans have experienced under the country's military regime. "That is something that chose me."

It has been the mescapable theme of his work. His latest book publication in English is "Last Waltz in Santiago." a collection of poems written originally in Spanish more than a decade ago in the first flush of anger and pain of exile. Dorfman was forced to leave Chile after the elected leftist government of Salvador Allende. which Dorfman supported, was overthrown in 1973 in a military coup led by General Augusto Pinochet. His novel "Widows." set in 1940s Greece, centers on the wives and families of men who have been abducted by a military government that claims it knows nothing of their disappearances. A different country, but it's an echo of the situation in Chile in the mid-'70s. His play of the same name based on the novel finished an experimental run at the Hip Pocket Theater in Fort Worth, Texas, and premiered in early August at the Williamstown Theater Festival in Massachusetts. And his fantasy "The Last Song of Manuel Sendero" focuses on an unborn baby who leads a mass refusal of fetuses to be born into a politically oppressive unnamed country — "the quintes-sential exile," Dorfman says of the baby, his favorite character. But this October will mark his attempt to put aside parables of Chile --- the debut of his newest book, a novel published in En-glish called "Mascara," which he describes as a surreal thriller. The central figure is a man utterly extraordinary cameralike ability to "capture the most inauthentic and obscene movements of other people's lives," says Dorfman. Dorfman, 46, lives in Durham, North Carolina, with his wife Ma-ria Angelica and two sons, Joa-quin, 9, and Rodrigo, 21, a stu-dent at Duke University, where Dorfman teaches every other year. But be is the embodiment of two countries and two cultures. A man exiled, and then allowed back in, and then not allowed in, and then allowed in. He wonders himself, am I an exile or am I not? As an outspoken critic of Pinochet, be believes that even the technicality of being able to re-turn does not protect him from danger. Two years ago, a friend, Rodrigo Rojas, a young Chilean-born Washington resident, re-turned to his homeland and was burned alive by Chilean soldiers, according to eyewitnesses. He died of his injuries soon afterward You basically gamble that it's a greater risk for Pinochet to harm you than it is a risk for you to go back," Dortman explains. But safe passage is only part of his wish. Dorfman assigns himself a more cosmic exile. "I will he potentially exiled until the people of Chile are out of exile." When "Widows" was published in 1983, be personally delivered copies to every member of the U.S. House of Representatives and Senate or at least to their offices, "Many of them wrote to me," be says, "Many of them read it.'

As it turned out, most Chilean exiles in Washington, Dorfman says, were allowed back into Chile in 1983. He has been back five times, once for as long as seven months. After he publiely criti-cized the Chilean government about the Rojas case, a couple of strange things happened, he says. First he heard that be had been assassinated in Chile. "It's a long story," he says. "It was a mistake of false identification." He found out about the report of his death when "somebody from the Asso-ciated Press called up and said, 'Listen, I take it you're not Then when he returned to Chile in August 1987, he was turned away at the airport. The situation was highly publicized. Ten days later, the government allowed him back m. "What is my situation now? As far as f know i can return to my country," he says. "And I re-turned in December and nothing happened. The son of Argentine Jews, Dorfman was born in Argentina but spent most of his formative years in New York while his father, who had fled the Argentine government, worked as an econo-mist at the United Nations. He spoke English, attended public schools and a private school, Dalton, where his mother was teaching Spanish.

When his family moved to Chile in 1954, he was heartbroken to leave New York. "I was an American kid exiled in Chile," he says. Dorfman went to bigb school and college, eventually settling in and becoming a natural-ized citizen. "I was seduced by the country," he says. "And I was seduced by Maria Angelica," he says. "I came to love the country and I came to love a certain wom-811.

After the coup in Chile, Dorf-man's parents Adolfo and Fanny Dorfman returned to Buenos Aires, and spent the next several years traveling between Chile and Argentina before finally resettling in Buenos Aires. Today his 81year-old father is an adviser to President Ranl Alfonsin of Argentina.

By the time Dorfman left Chile after the coup, he had already established himself as a teacher and a writer of essays and fiction, including a prize-winning Span-ish language novel. But for the first two years after leaving Chile, he could hardly write at all living in a shabby little Paris apartment with his family, no money, few friends, cut off, in limbo. He spent his time helping the Chilean resistance from Paris. When he finally did write, be produced poems. They are spare and direct - the horror of the life he and many others knew squeezed to its essence. "Especially after the coup, I have always focused on those little tiny acts of resistance that men and women and children and animais - every living thing manages to find to form a corner of dignity in the midst of the most terrible pressures to become inhuman. I think these are the two aspects I have been looking at." Dorfman sees his poetry functioning as "the cemetery of words, e dead can meet.' Poetry - As for me I have to sleep with your memory ta find you and sometimes if I'm lucky vou'll come back later in what are generally my dreams. Recently, Dorfman was en route to Chile from Buenos Aires, where he had been visiting his parents. The issue on most Chileans' minds these days is the much-anticipated plebiscite in which citizens will vote yes or no on a presidential candidate to be pieked soon by the military junta. The election probably will be held in October.

"I have always focused on those little tiny acts of resistance."

It's expected the candidate will be Pinochet, though polls indicate he is supported by less than a majority. This vote could start a momentous turn of events. The opposition, though skeptical about what will really happen, is determined to make the most of the opportunity, registering vot-ers and projecting an image of moderation. a graveyard where the living and "For the first time in many
